UNDIO Toolkit

As part of the project in question, a software tool is being created that allows waste management plans to be drawn up for communities in developing countries. This software tool will allow not only the waste flows to be mapped but also the emissions and costs of waste management. The project is carried out in close cooperation with the United Nations Industrial Development Organization UNIDO.