Consent to Photographs¹

Since photographs are personal data under the General Data Protection Regulation, for purposes of the photograph your consent is required. Responsible for this data processing is the Rectorate of TU Wien. Your photographs are used

- on the website
- in publications

of TU Wien.

According to article 7, paragraph 3 GDPR, you at any time have the option of revoking the consent to have your data processed.

Signature of the consenting party

² The sending of a newsletter may be legal on the basis of a legal obligation under the 2002 University Act or on the basis of consent given. For giving consent a digital solution (response to the email, clicking on the check box) is optimal, in particular a so-called „double opt-in“ is recommended, where besides the indication of consent the email address is demanded too.

³ The check boxes in the text may be adapted as needed for the particular newsletter.
